

73. (New) A computer program providing a real-time trading environment to a user communicating with at least one trading system over the Internet from a user workstation, comprising: software resident at the workstation and receiving over the Internet, interpreting, and displaying as non-overlapping simultaneously displayed windows at least the following data: a) data relating to price quotes for securities, b) data relating to account balances, c) data relating to news items regarding securities, and d) data relating to one or more of the user's positions in securities, wherein the program further comprises means for receiving updates to the price quotes for at least one security on a real-time basis without the user requesting each of the updates and means for displaying an updated quote to the user.

74. (New) The computer program of claim 73, wherein said data relating to positions is updated in real-time.

C1 cont
75. (New) The computer program of claim 73, wherein said data relating to account balances is updated in real-time.

76. (New) The computer program of claim 73, wherein said data relating to news items regarding securities is updated in real-time.

77. (New) The computer program of claim 8, wherein said at least some displayed data updated with data transmitted over the network by the computer system without the user requesting any updates is updated each time information for displayed orders on said computer system changes.

78. (New) The computer program of claim 48, wherein said received updates to the price quotes for at least one security without the user requesting each of the updates are received each time said price quotes change on said trading system.

79. (New) The computer program of claim 48, wherein displayed data relating to account balances is updated each time corresponding data changes on said trading system.

80. (New) The computer program of claim 48, wherein displayed data relating to news items regarding securities is updated each time corresponding data changes on said trading system.

CX
cont.